HOW BIZARRE

DESIGN INNOVATION

BRASS NECK

You might be tempted to pick it up and give it your best shot, but this tuba ain't gonna produce a tune no matter how hard you try. Where it does hit the right note, however, is in its true purpose – as a sort of alternative planter. The cast-iron Lalala is as practical as it is playful, thanks to its waterproof coating and its generous 120cm height. As such, it will be as happy livening up a dull corner of the drawing room as it will be out on the terrace, putting the terracotta plant pots to shame.

Cyprus-based design studio YO2 prides itself on producing contemporary pieces that it hopes will enrich our lives and living spaces. Its portfolio extends to quirky wallpapers and rugs for those who love classicism with a twist. ■
