LOUNGE OUTSIDE

▲ W. Atelier has added Gloster to the list of brands it now represents. The award-winning outdoor furniture company from Germany uses materials such as teak, sourced from the carefully-managed Indonesian plantations of state-owned Perum Perhutani, on the island of East Java. One example is the Kay collection by Henrik Pedersen. A Scandinavian-style teak frame is used to create a curved back panel for its seating pieces, making them stand out in a distinctive and welcoming manner.

ELDER CARE

▲ American furniture maker Janus et Cie has launched Alta, a dimension of chairs just for the silver generation. Available in the Amari, Arbor, Cortino, and Koko II collections, it features a seat that is raised, wider and less deep, combined with an overall increase in height. Each piece can be complemented by a cushion with more than 250 outdoor fabric options, and is suitable for high-traffic interior and exterior environments.

NEO-CLASSICAL SPIN

◀ Be dazzled by the interior fittings designed by Cypriot studio YO2. It creates wallpapers, rugs and planters under the direction of Pericles Liatsos, with the philosophy of enriching lives through "creating contemporary designs that both respect culture and bring with it a twist of classical influence". The planters are statement pieces made with cast iron and corrosion-resistant finishes.
